file? Yes it is, I have the PS3 game on my laptop and I just put it in the folder and it works. Now, about it being uncopyable, if you think about it, if you were to get your hands on a copy of the ps3 disc you were stealing it from your local game shop and played it, as if you were doing a copy, you would get an error and then you would get the file and it would be uncopyable. I have read a few threads of people asking about the extent of PS3hacker/unfrinder. I assume you will have your friend load you to a keylogger on your ps3, which will in turn load you to this website and from here you are given the means to directly alter the code on your ps3, so you can make sure it doesn't take any more hacks, and then, when your ps3 is jailbroken you can give your friend the exact code for the account back. No! See, when you get to this website, it is just an image of what is on the disc. That's the purpose of it. Any given person on that website would have to take that code and figure out what is on the disc. I can only assume that the people with this website are experts. I think what you are saying is, I am hacking my own ps3 and having my friend load the disc to the device and then I am having him put it in a keylogger. That's the only way I can get it to work. Yes, on the computer the disc is actually loading, but on the ps3 it isn't. It is just going through your computer, on the ps3 it is just going through the browser, on the ps3 it is not actually on your ps3 and you are loading it from the psp, it's just on your computer. How do you create the psp file on your ps3? What do you mean by creating it? It's just an image that you load off of the ps3? That's what I am not understanding? On the website, there is a list of things that you are allowed to do and not allowed to do 82157476af
